50 Hour Yin Yoga & Functional Anatomy

Livestream Teacher Training

May/June 2022

Information Pack

Thank you for your interest in this 50 Hour Yin Yoga and Functional Anatomy Teacher Training.

This comprehensive training is available for both already qualified yoga teachers and students of Yin Yoga, wanting to build their skill set and deepen their experience and knowledge of the practice.

The course offers an extensiveness array of content in the areas of Yin Theory and Philosophy, Anatomy, and Teaching Skills. This training has a great emphasis on how to teach yin yoga, and each day you will be guided through content that is integrated all the way through to practice opportunities, especially in the areas of developing language skills, holding space, understanding skeletal variance and working one on one with students to find the right yin yoga shape for their unique body.

Course Delivery and Dates.

The course has weekly online theory content that must be viewed prior to the Sunday zoom Livestream sessions. This is approximately 1-3 hours per week of online viewing. This includes the week leading up to the first Sunday.

When considering this training please take the time to plan for when you can undertake the weekly online viewing as it will be essential knowledge for the in-person practical sessions, and for your group teaching practice. It will be quite evident to myself and your group if this material has not been viewed by you.

The livestream training will include:

- 1 online zoom room meet and greet on Friday 29th April 6:30 – 7:30pm
- 6 x Sunday zooms 11am – 5pm: 1st, 8th, 15th, 22nd, 29th May, and the 5th June.

Daily structure.

There will be multiple breaks throughout each day to digest the learning and have time to integrate.

Each day will start with a yin yoga practice, which will form the basis of content for the day.

Course Requirements

- A regular yin yoga practice
- A foundational understanding of anatomy. We will be diving deeper beyond basic anatomy in this training. For those that need a refresher there will be links and videos suggested throughout the course material for your self-study.
- A minimum of five full days of online attendance in order to receive a certificate.
- Compulsory pre attendance viewing of video module content (this will be monitored).

Suggested Reading:

There will be articles, links and other materials on offer throughout the training. The following are excellent texts to acquire before-hand if you would like some extra preparation:

- “Yin Yoga: Principles and Practice” by Paul Grilley.
A small yet very comprehensive book to grasp the concepts of yin yoga
- “The Complete Guide to Yin Yoga” by Bernie Clark.
A much more detailed book of anatomical concepts and discussion of yin yoga as well as in-depth information of the benefits of each yin posture.

My background and training

My movement background is primarily that of a dancer. Dance led me to yoga, and I completed my first 350hr TT with AYA in 2010. I followed this up with another 350hr TT in India in 2012. During my time in India, I also spent a month studying at an Ayurvedic College learning diagnostic tools and massage.

I completed half of my Masters in Podiatric Practice at Latrobe University before transferring into a Bachelor of Health Science, Chinese Medicine major in 2015. I have just recently completed my Bachelor of Health Science Chinese Medicine major in 2019 and am now a fully qualified acupuncturist and herbalist.

My yin training consists of:

- 50hr study with Jen Crescenzo in Melbourne (2015)
- 50hr study with Bernie Clark in Vancouver (2017)
- 50hr of Study with Paul Grilley in California (2018)

I am also one of the lecturers at the Australian Yoga Academy, and I deliver content in the areas of Yin Yoga, the Skeletal System, the Spine, and the development of cueing and language skills.
